

Founder of DuBose Trial Law and Champion in Business Litigation

Von A. DuBose is the founder of DuBose Trial Law, a premier trial firm based in Atlanta, Georgia, where he focuses on high-stakes business litigation. Grounded in more than two decades of courtroom and dispute-resolution experience, Von is known for simplifying complex facts, building cases with trial discipline, and driving results in matters where reputations, businesses, and futures are on the line.

Von's foundation as a trial lawyer began after earning his J.D. from Case Western Reserve University School of Law (1998), where he started developing the discipline that now defines his practice: mastery of the record, strategic clarity, and the ability to simplify complex issues for decision-makers. From the start of his career, he gravitated toward matters that required both rigorous legal analysis and a steady commitment to justice—handling business disputes involving contracts, governance, and shareholder conflicts while also taking on civil rights cases where the human impact is as important as the legal strategy.

Before launching DuBose Trial Law in 2024, Von served as a partner at Bondurant, Mixson & Elmore and later co-founded DuBose Miller LLC, helping build a strong, trial-forward reputation in civil litigation. Those years sharpened the hallmarks of his approach: early case command, disciplined discovery planning, careful witness development, and a trial narrative that is built brick-by-brick—so the case is positioned for the best possible outcome, whether by verdict, arbitration decision, or leverage-driven resolution.

Today, Von leads DuBose Trial Law with a clear mission: deliver boutique-level focus with courtroom-ready execution for clients facing serious legal challenges. His work in the Ruby Freeman and Shay Moss v. Rudy Giuliani defamation case—culminating in a $148 million jury verdict—reflects the same principles that shape his practice: relentless preparation, clear themes, and direct advocacy when the stakes are highest.
